Wrockwardine.

Wrockwardine Registers.

Wrockwardine is an extensive parish in the diocese of Lichfield, arch-deaconry of Salop, rural deanery of Wrockwardine, and hundred of South Bradford, and comprises the hamlets of Admaston, Allscot, Bratton, Burcot, Charlton, Clottley, Leaton, Long Lane, and Walcot. The village lies between the high road and the railway some 10 miles east from Shrewsbury and 2 from Wellington. The area of the parish is 4,565 acres, and the population in 1901 was 1,139.

In Saxon times Wrockwardine was a Royal manor and the head of the hundred of Recordine (as it is spelt in the Domesday Book), and its name shows it to have been early an important village (Worthing) near the Wrekin—the hill from which both Uriconium and Wroxeter also took their names.

After the Conquest, the manor passed into the hands of the Norman Earl of Shrewsbury, Roger de Montgomery, who kept some portion of it in his own hands as demesne land. The Domesday Book says: "To this manor belong seven and a half Berewicks (townships). Here are five hides geldable. In demesne are 4 ox teams; and 13 Villeins, 4 Bordars, a Priest and a Radman have among them all 12 teams. Here are 8 Neatherds, a Mill of 12s. (annual value), and a wood one league long and a half a league wide. The Church of St. Peter (Shrewsbury Abbey) holds the Church of this Manor, with one hide, and thereon it has one ox-team, and another team might be added."

From this record we gather that in 1086 the wide lands of the Manor were fairly inhabited and cultivated, as the employment of only one additional team is mentioned as desirable, that on land at Charlton. The tenants mentioned are, excepting the Neatherds, of a superior order, and there were no doubt several families of lower degree who worked for them, and who cultivated the demesne lands. The neatherds pastured their cattle on the open spaces about the Wrekin and the glades of the great wood, and they probably owned some, at least, of the cattle they herded. The manor mill was at Allscot, and was in the 12th century granted to the Canons of Haughmond.

Wrockwardine Church was of Saxon foundation and the Mother Church of a large district. Odelirius the Priest, one of Earl Roger's chaplains, the father of Ordericus Vitalis the Chronicler, was apparently Rector of Wrockwardine when he gave his land at Charlton to the newly founded Abbey of Shrewsbury, to which Earl Roger gave the advowson of Wrockwardine. Charlton remained, in part, the property of the Abbey till the Dissolution of Religious Houses, and another portion was held by the Charlton family under the Churches of St. Mary and St. Julian, Shrewsbury.

The manor of Wrockwardine, after the rebellion and forfeiture of the last Norman Earl of Shrewsbury, passed into the hands of the King, who granted its profits to various favoured servants, first to Roger de Powis and his brother John, and later to the Le Strange family. In 1220, John Le Strange, lord of Knockin, confirmed to the Canons of Wombridge Priory all the rights of land, wood, and pasture granted to them by King Henry II. at Wrockwardine Wood. This land is described as lying lengthways between Watling street and Heathgreen, bounded on one side by a wood of John Le Strange, and on the other by a watercourse running between Stamford in Watling street and Heathgreen. Several succeeding Le Strange lords of Wrockwardine further confirmed this grant.

Walcot, which is now in Wrockwardine parish, was originally in that of Wellington. It was granted, with its mill, by the Empress Maud to the Canons of Haughmond in 1176; and in 1255 the Bradford Hundred Rolls says: "The Abbot of Haemon holds Walcot, taken out of the Manor of Welinton by King Henry." The Canons held their land here and at Allscot till the Dissolution in 1535.

Admaston was for some generations held by the family of Burnell, and Sir Hugh Burnell, brother of the Bishop of Bath and Wells, Edward I.'s great Chancellor, held this property at the close of the 13th century.

Clottley was held in early days by a family that took their name from the hamlet. The Church of Wroxeter also possessed property there, held as tenants by the family of De Erleton of Orleton.

Orleton, having been once part of the great Manor of Wellington, was annexed, probably by Henry I., to that of Bolas. The lords of Bolas were Chief Foresters of Salop, with a wide jurisdiction, but their control over Orleton seems to have been only nominal. It was held in the 12th century by the De Erletons, and remained with them for many generations. In 1305 mention is made of the Mill of Orleton. The Cludd family quarter the arms of the De Erletons, and seem to have succeeded them at Orleton by the marriage, in 1331, of the heiress of De Erleton.

In 1490, on a rent-roll of Shrewsbury Abbey, is the name of "Mayster Clode" (Mr. Cludde), who paid a small rent to the Abbey for land at Clottley. The Cludde family occur as holding land in the neighbourhood in the early 15th century.

Bratton was a distinct Manor in 1086, and was held by William Pantulf, Baron of Wem. Its Saxon tenant was Ernet, but he had been dispossessed for a Norman tenant, Warin. The manor had been valued in Saxon times at 24s. a year (a very considerable sum), but now was nearly waste, and the four Bordars had no team on the arable land, which needed four for its cultivation. The Eytons of Eyton, who possibly were descendants of the Norman Warin, held Bratton with Eyton, and it was counted as part of that manor.

The Manor of Wrockwardine passed from the Le Stranges to the Talbots at the close of the 14th century by the marriage of Ankaret, daughter of John Le Strange, with Sir Richard Talbot. In the following century the Talbots became Earls of Shrewsbury. In 1616 their estates were divided between the three daughters of Gilbert Talbot, and the Manor of Wrockwardine was held in three portions. In 1674 the three owners were Charles, Earl of Shrewsbury, William, Lord Stafford, and Edward Revell of Shifnal, who had bought the third part of the Manor from Sir George Savile of Thornhill, co. York, in 1665. After passing through several different hands, the three portions were united at the beginning of the 19th century by William Cludde of Orleton, whose descendant, Colonel Herbert, is the present lord of the Manor.

The Charlton family became of note towards the close of the 12th century, but it was about a century later that Robert de Charlton held the estate of Charlton under the Abbey of Shrewsbury. He was the father of three famous sons: John, who married Hawise, Princess of Powis; Alan, of Apley, and Thomas, Bishop of Hereford. John de Charlton stood high in the favour of Edward II., who, in 1307, called him "dilectus valettus noster." In 1316, John de Charlton had the royal license to wall and crenelate his house at Charlton, but on his death in 1353, Charlton Castle was assessed as not being worth anything beyond its expenses.

The elder line of the Charltons of Charlton became merged in the Barons of Powis, but the younger remained for many generations at Apley and at Tern. The property of Wombridge Priory passed in the 16th century into the hands of the Charlton family.

Leaton, Burcot, and a place called Ness, not now to be identified, are mentioned about 1280 as belonging to the Manor of Wrockwardine, together with Admaston, Allscot, and Clotley. Possibly Ness was the name of some of the high ground between Wrockwardine and Wrockwardine Wood. The latter wood seems not to have consisted of either oak or beech trees, as there seems no mention of pannage for pigs there, an important matter in mediæval days, constantly noted in deeds.

The family of Pemberton was of note in Wrockwardine in the 17th century, and the estate of Orleton passed to William Pemberton, who, in 1785, took the name of Cludde, under the will of his uncle. Members of the family occur in 1445 in connection with the Lords of Powis, and in the time of Edward VI. Robert Pemberton was living at Aston under the Wrekin. John Pemberton of Aston moved to Wrockwardine and built a house there in 1651. Edward Pemberton of Wrockwardine was Sheriff of Shropshire in 1754.

Burcot was at the beginning of the 18th century the home of Peter Langley, whose daughter Martha married William Cludde, Sheriff of Shropshire in 1723, and one of their two daughters married Edward Pemberton, the Sheriff in 1754.

The Church of St. Peter, at Wrockwardine, is of great interest architecturally. There is a trace of early Norman work in the nave, and the chancel, central tower, and transepts are of 12th century work. The upper storey of the tower and some of the windows are Decorated in style, while late in the 14th century a north chapel was added to the chancel. The south chapel is of late Perpendicular work and some portion of the south transept dates from the 15th century. The building was restored in 1854 by Mr. Ewan Christian, but much had been done at the fabric in the 18th and 19th centuries, as the central tower showed signs of weakness almost from mediæval days.

Wrockwardine Wood Church was built in 1833, from the design of Mr. Smith of Madeley. It is a plain brick structure of Georgian character, with a western tower. Additions and improvements were made to it in 1875 and in 1888. The patronage of the Mother Church passed at the Dissolution of the Abbey of Shrewsbury into the hands of the King.

Thomas Ashe, the Vicar in 1602, had no University degree and had no license from the Bishop to preach.

In the time of the Commonwealth, Wrockwardine was placed in the first of the six "classes" into which the county of Salop was divided. For part of that time the Minister here was Joshua Barnett, of whom an account is given by Calamy. He was a son of Humphrey Barnett, a celebrated preacher. He was born at Uppington but brought up in Lancashire, where his father retired after refusing to read the Book of Sports. Joshua Barnett's first Shropshire parishes were Astley and Hadnall, near Shrewsbury, which he gave up on refusing to take the Engagement against the King and House of Lords. The influence of Mr. Steventon, of Dothill, brought him the living of Wrockwardine, where he remained till 1662, when he was ejected as only having received Presbyterian ordination. He continued in the neighbourhood, going twice every Sunday to Church at High Ercall, two miles from his house. He used to preach at home at noon and then take his whole auditory to Church. Some years before his death he moved into Cheshire, and preached in the parish church at Warburton, which was exempt from episcopal jurisdiction. "He was a personable man of considerable abilities, and a pleasing preacher." His younger brother, Andrew Barnett, was ejected from Rodington in 1662, and became Minister at Daventry in Northamptonshire.

In 1676, Wrockwardine had 506 inhabitants over the age of 16, all Church people, and one Papist, who was probably a tenant of the Talbots of Pepperhill, a Roman Catholic family who held land at Wrockwardine in 1702.

In the Lay Subsidy Roll of 1327 of those who paid to the King a twentieth of the value of their moveable goods, there are 7 names at Wrockwardine, 5 at Admaston, 4 at Allscot, 9 at Leaton, 4 at Clotley, 11 at Walcot, and 3 at Bratton. There were no wealthy men among them, except, perhaps, John le Strange, of Wrockwardine, and Thomas de Walcot, of Clotley.

The patronage of the Vicarage was for a long period with the Crown, from whom it passed to the Cluddes. The present patron is Colonel Herbert of Orleton.

The value of the Vicarage of Wrockwardine, as given in the King's Books, is £7 8s. 6d.

The registers of Wrockwardine are contained in six books.

Volume I. (1591—1742) is of parchment, size 11 inches by 7½. The first page is rubbed, but otherwise it is in good condition.

Vol. II. (1742—1759) is of parchment, size 15 inches by 6, bound in old calf, and in fair condition.

Vol. III. (1760—1812) is bound in vellum; as also is Vol. IV. (1754—1782), the earliest separate Marriage Register. Vol. V. (1782—1801) also contains marriages.

Volume VI. (1801—1812) is bound in calf. All the Marriage Registers are the usual paper forms.

The entries are, generally speaking, rather bald, and few notices are given of the dwelling or occupation of those mentioned.

Between 1735 and 1765 baptisms are constantly entered as “privately baptised” on one date, and “fully baptised” some time later. The transcriber has in these cases given the date of the reception into the Church.

Among the families of importance mentioned are the Salters, who were of Oswestry and Newport, the Cluddes, the Pembertons, the Brownes, the Stevensons of Dothill, the Langleys, and the Roos.

entries were made by the Parish Clerk, whose spelling of names was somewhat erratic. Riganel, Crispian, Kester, and Milliner (for Milliona), are to be found among them. Bella Baugh appears as Bellow Bough, and Rebellah Perry is an unusual form; Boadicea Bailey he has spelt correctly, but Silvey Pascoll and Loley Granjer seem incorrect.

The Royal Oak, the Streetway, the Blue Bell in the Streetway, the Dale, the Feathers in the Streetway, are places all named in the Registers.

A centenarian occurs:—Elizabeth Ward, of Charlton, widow, aged 102, who was buried in 1738.

The Registers were kindly transcribed by Mr. W. A. Cecil Sandford-Thompson, and the proofs have been collated with the original Registers and seen through the press by Miss Auden. They are now printed with the permission of the Revd. Albert Alexander Turreff, the present Vicar of Wrockwardine.

The Register
Moreton Say.

Moreton Say Registers.

Moreton Say is a parish of 5,999 acres, in the diocese of Lichfield, arch-deaconry of Salop, rural deanery of Hodnet, and hundred of North Bradford. It comprises the townships or hamlets of Longford, Bletchley, Styche and Woodlands, and Tern Hill, and, for civil purposes, Shavington, which ecclesiastically is in Adderley parish. It lies 18 miles north-east of Shrewsbury, and three miles west from Market Drayton. The population in 1901 was 858.

The Manor of Moreton, as it was then termed, was held in 1086 by Roger de Lacy, under Earl Roger de Montgomery, as a Manor of three hides. It had belonged to a Saxon franklin, Elmund, who apparently was not dispossessed without a struggle, as the manor was waste when it came to its Norman possessor, though in the time of King Edward the Confessor, it had been valued at the then large sum of 40s. a year.

De Lacy had a tenant here named William, and the manor was valued at 30s. There was one ox-team on the demesne land, and 8 serfs, 4 villeins, and 4 bordars had two teams, but there was arable land sufficient to employ 6 teams more. The wood of the manor could fatten 100 swine. The De Say family seem to have become possessed of Moreton in the 12th century and they continued to be lords of the manor till the 14th. From them the place became called Moreton Say. John Tayleur, Esq., of Buntingsdale, is the present lord of the manor.

The family of Bostock was of note in Moreton Say in the 16th and 17th centuries. Hugh Bostock entered his pedigree at the Heralds' Visitation of 1582. They seem to have been originally a Cheshire family, but were settled at Moreton before the close of the 15th century, as Anne Burton of Longner was about that time married to a Bostock of Moreton Say.

Styche in early days consisted of two estates, one held under the lords of Stoke-on-Tern, and the other under the De Says of Moreton. A family of De Stuche were tenants there under the De Says of Moreton, and the Sandfords of Sandford also had an interest in the place. The Clives, who were originally a Cheshire family, obtained the estate in the 15th century by the marriage of James Clive, of Huxley, co. Chester, with Katherine, daughter and heir of John Stuche of Stuche. The great Lord Clive was born at Styche on 29th September, 1725. In 1784 his son Edward, second Lord Clive, married Lady Henrietta Anthonia Herbert, sister and heir of the second Earl of Powis; their son in 1807 took the name and Arms of Herbert. Styche, the residence of the Lady Mary Herbert, is the property of the Earl of Powis. It was re-built by Lord Clive after his return from India, probably about 1765, and in 1798 was considerably altered and repaired by the Hon. Robert Clive. Reginald Corbet, Esq., of Adderley, is lord of the manor of Styche.

Another member of the manor of Moreton Say, but now lost, was Waranshall, where Richard de Pulesdon in 1294 had the Royal licence to crenellate his manor house. The place called Oldfields is mentioned in deeds apparently as near Waranshall. It is a detached portion of the Manor of Bletchley. Another place spoken of as Hulle (i.e., Hill) gave its name to a family that occurs in connection with the neighbourhood.

In 1086, the small manor of Lai is mentioned next to Moreton, and seems now to be represented by Audley Brow. In the 12th century the men of Audley were tenants of Robert de Say of Moreton, and later William Stuche held land here.

Bletchley, another township, was in early times held under the elder branch of the De Says by a family taking their name from the place, one of whom, William de Bletchley, with his overlord, Helias de Say of Stoke, confirmed the gift of his father Nicholas, of the mill of Bletchley, to the Canons of Lilleshall. Sir Richard de Sandford about 1245 allowed the Canons to enlarge their mill-stank there, though it encroached on his land at Mickley, and was a disadvantage to his mill of Aychley. William de Bletchley's son, Sir Robert, gave his wood of Over, near the mill, to the Canons and also some meadow-land at Bletchley. Robert de Bletchley parted with his interest in the manor to Robert Corbet, and in 1285 it was put down as a member of the manor of Stoke-on-Tern. The Abbey of Lilleshall retained its estate at Bletchley till the Dissolution. In later times William Hill of Bletchley and Souton married Elizabeth, daughter of William Bostock of Moreton Say, and their grandson, Rowland, in 1592 was of Hawkestone. In 1712 Rowland Hill sold the manor and estate of Bletchley to John Corser, whose descendant, E. G. S. Corser, Esq., of Shrewsbury, is now lord of the manor of Bletchley, and a landowner there. There are two picturesque half-timbered houses at Bletchley, in one of which Charles II. is said to have slept.

Longford was connected with Hodnet as part of the Fee of the Seneschals of Montgomery, who were lords of Hodnet. It was held in the 12th century by Robert de Longford, who gave half-a-virgate of land in Longford, together with his body to the Abbey of Combermere. The abbey exchanged this land with Ivo Meverel, retaining a rent of 6d., which was duly paid till the Dissolution. A family of De Ford also held land in Longford in the 13th century. They seem to have taken their name from what is now Fordhall.

Longford apparently took its name from the great road that ran in Roman times, and still runs from Bletchley to Hinstock, though it is not actually situated upon it. The road itself was known as the Longford, and in the time of Henry III. its place of crossing the Tern at Tern Hill was called Stratford. In 1319, the Sheriff of Shropshire was ordered to enquire into the state of the "Royal Road called Longford, between Bletchley and Newport; whether the bridges and footpaths were so dilapidated by the overflowing of the circumjacent marshes that no one could pass thereby without peril of life; whether many passengers had actually thus perished; whether any one was bound to repair the road." The inquiry was duly held at Market Drayton in June, 1319, and a levy of the due called Pontage ordered for the repair of the road. The old manor house at Longford, now cottages, possesses some fine chimneys of unusual design. John Tayleur, Esq., is the present lord of the manor of Longford.

Moreton Say Church, dedicated to St. Margaret, dates from the 12th century, when it was founded as a chapel of Hodnet. It was cased in substantial brickwork in 1788. It consists of chancel and nave, with south porch and western tower; and there is a Transition door, and a font of the same date. It contains monuments to the Vernon, Clive, and Corser families, a 17th century tomb to John Bostock who died 21st December, 1611, and to Jane his wife, the daughter of Sir Thomas Vernon of Haslington, which Jane afterwards married Richard Grosvenor of Eaton; and a modern memorial to the great Lord Clive, whose baptism is recorded in the register on October 2nd, 1725, and his burial on November 30th, 1774.

In 1553, the Commissioners of Edward VI. left to the parishioners of Moreton Say "two bells in the steeple, one small bell, and one chalice of silver with the paten." Roger Masse was then curate, and John Yeaton and Thomas Eyre, Churchwardens.

In 1634, Jane, wife of Richard Grosvenor, and daughter of Sir Thomas Vernon, gave £10 towards putting up the handsome Jacobean gallery, and in 1642 she put up the quaint wooden mural monument to her sisters Elizabeth, Mary and Rachell Vernon. Possibly Robert Vernon, Esq., buried here in 1741, was connected with Moreton Say through her. This Jane was the widow of John Bostock, son of Hugh Bostock of Moreton Say, when she married on 25th May, 1614, Richard Grosvenor, of Eaton.

It is impossible to make out a complete list of the Incumbents, as Moreton Say was merely a chapelry of Hodnet, and their names are not recorded in the early Diocesan Registers. In the Libri Institutionum only two names are given—Thomas Cuthbert Heber in 1811, and Reginald Heber in 1816, both presented by Reginald Heber, clerk, the patron. In 1867, Moreton Say was made a separate parish, and in 1874 it was endowed with the Rectorial tithes and became a Rectory.

The following is the most complete list of the clergy that we have been able to compile :—

- 1553, Roger Masse, Curate.

The Parish Register Abstract of 1831 contains this account of the Moreton Say Registers:—"Moreton Say, P.C. Nos. I., II., Bap., Bur. 1691—1812. No. III., marr., 1754—1812." Volume I. contains entries from 1691 to 1760, and one parchment leaf of an earlier register for the year 1614. It consists of parchment leaves, 12 inches by 7 inches, bound in a cover of brown calf, and is legible throughout and in good condition, except that small pieces have been cut from the bottom of several pages, perhaps for the purpose of writing certificates upon, or some similar purpose.

Volume II., which is labelled Volume 4, contains entries of baptisms and burials from October, 1760, till December 1812. It consists of 44 leaves of parchment, measuring 16 inches by 9 inches, bound in calf. Between 1768 and 1788 the leaves are written on one side only. Thirty leaves at least have been cut out at the end of the book; probably they were left blank in 1812, and were utilized after that date for other purposes.

Volume III., which contains marriages from 1754 to 1812, is a paper book (Lowndes' Register) in the usual printed form. It was about three parts full, when the older forms were superseded in the year 1812. This marriage Register is remarkable for the number of instances in which the Parish Clerk was the sole witness. He occurs so frequently that his name need not be repeated after the first time of the appearance of a fresh occupant of the clerkship. James Cresswell signs from 1753 till 1765. He was succeeded by Stephen Copnall (or Copnal as he sometimes writes his name), who held the post till 1780, when he was succeeded by Thomas Davies. He in turn was followed in 1800 by Richard Copnall, who still held office in 1812.

The most important family named in the Register is that of Clive, whose members are always styled "Esq." or "Mr." There are not many entries of other families of note; and the early part is very sparing of prefixes—the Rev. Robert Peplow, for instance, is not once called "Mr." or "Rev." Richard Grosvenor is called "Esq." early in the 17th century; and in 1695 occurs the burial of Richard, son of John Hunt, Esq. It is possible that this John Hunt was of Mollington, co. Chester, and son of the Parliamentarian General. John Hunt married Dorcas, daughter of Richard Amphlett, which may show a connection with the Mistress Dorcas Hunt of Chester, buried in 1766. Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Amphlett, was wife of Robert Clive at the end of the 17th century. Benjamin Clive, baptized December, 1695, became Vicar of Driffield and ancestor of the Clives of Perrystone Court, co. Hereford. Mr. Thomas Whittingham, whose child was buried in 1703, is elsewhere called "yeoman, of Longford." Mrs. Anne Whitcombe of Shrewsbury, buried in 1703, and Mrs. Anne Whitcombe of Salop in 1707, were of the family seated at Berwick Mavison near Shrewsbury. Mr. John Doughty, buried in July 1718, and Mrs. Frances Doughty in October of the same year. Mrs. Mary Woollaston of Salop, buried 1720, was daughter of Robert Clive; her husband, Richard Wollaston of Styche, was receiver of taxes for Salop. We have not found the clue to the connection with Moreton Say of Margery, wife of Mr. Hinton, buried 1745, Mrs. Sudal, of Newcastle, buried 1746, and Mrs. Judith Grant of Drayton, 1765. Sir John James Markham, buried in 1773, married in 1755 Sarah Clive, a sister of the great Lord Clive. Several members of the Corser family occur, the earliest with a prefix being Mrs. Corser, of Whitechurch, in 1778. Mrs. Dorothy Furbeck, 1782, and Mr. William Furbeck, 1794; Mrs. Mary Horton, 1783; Mrs. Frances Redshaw, 1783; Mrs. Mary Houlbrook, 1786; and Mr. Thomas Houlbrooke, 1794, we have not traced. Mrs. Mary Houlbrook was the wife of Theophilus, and a Rev. Theophilus Houlbrook was at one time connected with Edgmond. Mrs. Mary Pownall was a daughter of J. Gerrard, of Moreton Say, and Widow of William Pownall, who died in 1767, during his year of office as Mayor of Liverpool. There was a connection between a branch of the Pownall family and that of Redshaw. Mrs. Elizabeth Peplow, 1792, was probably of the family of the Rev. Robert Peplow, for 52 years incumbent of Moreton Say. Mrs.

Hampton, 1794; Mrs. Elizabeth Rotton, 1797; Mr. George Simpson, 1797; Mr. John Simpson, 1799; Thomas Woolley, Esq., 1799; Mrs. Anne Fleetwood, 1801; Mrs. Elizabeth Painter, 1803, are later names mentioned.

The Register was transcribed by Mr. T. R. Horton. The first volume was collated by Miss Auden, the second by the Rev. F. A. Allen, and the third by the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher. They are now printed by the kind permission of the Rev. Owen F. Jacson, the present Rector of Moreton Say.
